PROBATE JUDGE STRICKEN.

The Hon. J. V. Carney of Bennington Tenting at Big Pond.

Bennington, Aug. 28.—Probate Judge John V. Carney is at Charles E. Dewey's summer cottage in Woodford, where he was taken yesterday after a shock of apoplexy that has left him in a serious condition. Judge Carney was stricken early yesterday morning at a camp on the shore of Big pond, where he was tenting for some time with F. A. Evans of Bennington and Dr. F. L. Sibley of Albany. The news of his misfortune was telephoned here and a physician was at once sent to his assistance, as Dr. Sibley was without facilities for treatment. It was found impossible to bring him to Bennington, and he was taken to a cottage near by.

He is a native of Maine, but has resided in Bennington since 1854. He was a senator in the legislature in 1884 and was elected probate judge in 1902. He is in his 72d year and in feeble health.

Keep Good Hired Help.

It is to be noted that farmers who have least trouble about hired help are those who keep their men the whole year. A year round, permanent job on a farm at good wages is a desirable position, and employees will usually make every effort to please and be retained.

Many of the best farmers have kept men for the greater part of a lifetime, and in such cases the employees had come to take a personal interest in the success of the business and have acquired a familiarity with details which makes their work valuable beyond ordinary estimate. The farmer who pays well and promptly makes it worth while for the man to try to please, and many of them will try, says American Cultivator.

Hire only the best workers and pay good prices, pay promptly, treat reasonably, keep permanently on good behavior, but discharge at once if unsatisfactory, and give them good board. Any other general method is liable in the end to prove poor policy.

Inbreeding in Plants.

Many of the most important crops, such as wheat, oats, barley and tobacco, are produced from seed which is habitually self fertilized—the closest possible degree of inbreeding—while others, as corn and hemp, are normally cross fertilized.—A. D. Shamel.

MONTPELIER

Frank Bruidnell of Chicago, formerly of this city, is visiting in town for a few days. Mr. Bruidnell went West 28 years ago and this is the first time he has returned East.

Miss Bessie Smith went yesterday to Boston, where she has a position in the nurses' training school in the Homeopathic hospital. She is the daughter of E. A. Smith of this city.

Nearly all the manufacturing plants on the Winooski river that are dependent upon water power are shut down a large part of the time. The water in that stream is the lowest it has been for five years.

Senator W. P. Dillingham and party who have been in England for several weeks studying the conditions there, will sail from Liverpool Thursday on the Cedric, and are due in New York the last of next week.

The Rev. Homer A. Flint of Pittsburg, Pa., who has accepted the call to be rector of Christ church in this city, and who is to commence his labors here October 1, has rented of Mrs. L. C. Vail her home on Baldwin street for a rectory.

W. A. Lord received notice yesterday morning of the death and burial of Miss Eleanor Burleigh, his niece, at Bedford, N. H. Because of trouble in the transmission of a telegram Mr. Lord did not receive this notice in time to attend the funeral.

The schools open Tuesday morning of next week at nine o'clock a. m. The various teachers report for duty Saturday and held their usual informal social session Monday evening, at which time the school board will also meet. A supplemental examination will be held today, beginning this morning at nine.

An effort was made Monday night at the Central Vermont station to arrange a wrestling match between Mr. St. Martins, night operator, and Con Sullivan of Barre. Dave Spicer and George O'Connor went with Mr. Sullivan and backers were ready to put up from $50 to $200 on him. Mr. O'Connor was also ready to spar Mr. St. Martins, who is quite an athlete. Mr. St. Martins did not care to bet any money, but was willing to wrestle or box for a purse. A match may be arranged later.

Judge W. W. Miles returned yesterday noon to his home in Barre, after closing up matters which came before him at the March term of Washington county court. An order for temporary alimony was made in the divorce case of Glinn vs. Glinn. In the foreclosure proceedings in the case of T. R. Gordon and wife vs. T. J. Deavitt and the C. W. Willard estate a decree for the orator was granted and the case was appealed to Supreme court. Several other minor matters were passed upon before Judge Miles left for his home yesterday.

The wreck crew was at work all day yesterday in getting the derailed locomotive on the Central Vermont branch between Barre and Montpelier back on the rails, and the tracks of the Montpelier & Wall River railroad were again utilized yesterday for running Central Vermont passenger trains between the two cities. Hundreds of people have visited the scene of the wreck and watched with interest the work of getting the derailed locomotive back on the track. An attempt was made Monday evening to burn the covered Central Vermont bridge east end of the wreck, but the fire was discovered in time to extinguish it before much damage had been done. The bridge was burning at both ends, and as no trains had passed through it for 12 hours, it was clearly of incendiary origin. The railway officials have placed a watchman at that point.

SOUTH RANDOLPH.

Miss Alice Kibbee visited at Willow farm one day last week.
Hazel Grifford had a tumorous growth removed from her foot recently.

THE POULTRY INDUSTRY.

Eastern Farmers Find That It Returns a Fair Profit.

The farmer in the eastern part of this continent is decidedly handicapped by the soil and the high price of hay when he attempts to compete with the west in the production of most animal products, but he more than holds his own in the poultry field, as little or no bulky food is needed for fowls and the very high local prices for poultry and eggs return him a handsome profit.

Poultry Plants.

A recent careful examination of a number of commercial and farm poultry plants throughout Massachusetts and Rhode Island shows an average return of nearly $2.50 for each dollar invested in feed for laying hens, with a little help occasionally. Ducklings produced at a food cost of 4 to 8 cents per pound sell for 14 to 40 cents per pound on the New York market, and we sometimes see a small consignment of crate fattened chickens, a truly delicious roast. Most of these specially fattened chickens come from the middle west, where big packing houses are extensively engaged in their production, but many of our local poultrymen are undertaking this industry in connection with their other lines and find it possible to increase the weight of a four pound chicken from 25 to 50 per cent in three weeks at a very slight cost. The fat bird contains twice as much flesh in proportion to bone as the lean one and is worth considerably more per pound.

Learning the Business.

For a number of years our state and national authorities have been emphasizing the importance of poultry keeping as a rapid and sure means of making a comfortable living and at the same time greatly improving our rough or barren farms. This agitation in itself is commendable, but its danger lies in the fact that many are induced to risk their all in the poultry industry without sufficient knowledge and experience to achieve success. The poultry industry will yield a greater net profit on the investment than almost any other, but its prosecution on a large scale calls for a high degree of skill and constant application. The capital required to engage in the business is not large, the work is pleasant and a good market is assured, but an inexperienced beginner will avoid much loss of time and money by attending some good course in poultry husbandry at one of our state agricultural colleges.—Country Gentleman.

Vinegar Caution

Vinegar may be vinegar, or it may be something else; and due regard for health demands care in the purchase of this article of universal consumption. Perhaps a so-called vinegar, composed of acetic acid and water may not be called strictly poisonous, but to use it is to treat the delicate lining of one's stomach rather harshly, to say the least, while its strong metallic taste destroys the flavor of everything to which it is applied. Or if it is doctored with tannic or sulphuric acid to improve its flavor, then it is doubly dangerous because more deceitful. It would seem, therefore, that one's only safeguard is to purchase a reliable brand from a reliable grocer and the absolute guaranteed purity and perfection of delicate flavor in all Hinz Vinegars will recommend them to discriminating people.

We sell Hinz XXX Malt Vinegars in bottles, for salads, etc., incomparable. Heinz Pure Pickling Vinegar, the best obtainable White Vinegar—a Vinegar for all general pickling purposes. Heinz Pure Cider Vinegar for those who prefer cider vinegar, strictly pure. Each the best of its type. There is safety in buying your vinegar from us. We refund full purchase price if any package of Hinz Vinegar proves unsatisfactory.
